

In this lab exercise, I implemented client-side data persistence and asynchronous API integrations using HTML, CSS, and JavaScript. I used localStorage to save user settings—such as light/dark themes and language preferences—so state persists across reloads. Additionally, I built live lookup tools using APIs to retrieve real-time weather metrics, GitHub profile data, and Google Maps location searches, gaining practical experience in data fetching, parameter handling, and dynamic DOM updates.